CABEI'S NEW ERA

Marking a milestone in multilateral banking, CABEI recently elected its first female Executive President, Gisela Sánchez, who committed from the first day she took office to lead the Bank towards a path of transformation based on three fundamental pillars: Ethics and Transparency, Technical Rigor and Accountability, Proactivity, the institution's renewing commitment to continue being a key driver of the region's integral development, with a prosperous and sustainable vision, working for a more competitive, digital and integrated Central America.

"Strengthening governance, transparency and excellence will be central to our work in the coming years. As CABEI's new President, I am firmly committed to strengthening internal controls and fully assuming our fiduciary commitments to ensure compliance with the highest international development banking standards.

I am certain that working under the highest standards of ethics and transparency will allow us to gain trust and strengthen relations with each of our member countries, our strategic allies, regulatory bodies and the general public," said Sánchez upon being sworn in as CABEI Executive President for the 2023-2028 term.

She added that in this new phase CABEI is committed to addressing climate change with conviction, prioritizing decarbonization, sustainable water management, integrated solid waste management and biodiversity protection, as well as gender equity and greater opportunities for women.
